OUR STORY

We were a young couple in the Army when Punjab found us. We were posted in Gobindgarh, near Abohar, along the banks of the Indira Gandhi Canal. Unhurried at first glance. Full of vigour if you chose to see it.

And we chose to see it.

The mustard fields, the gentle whisper of flowing water, the community bathing at tube wells, the unbridled joy of biting into a juicy Kinnow straight from the tree. The mud houses, the earthy people, the simplicity of life. A riot of colour and warmth, in which three years disappeared in a blink.

Punjab had lit something in us that would not go out. We travelled. We experienced the length and breadth of the country, carrying that same curiosity Punjab had given us. But as we moved on in time, something troubled us. We watched people reduce the joy of travel to ticking off a bucket list. Arrived. Photographed. Departed. Hundreds of destinations suffered this fate. And so did our beloved Punjab.

We wanted people to relive what we had experienced in those three years.

Rajshree completed her MBA in Tourism. Rajiv completed his Army service, joined ISB Mohali, and discovered the power of storytelling. And then, as if the journey had always been circular, we were back in Punjab, where our dream had started.

Together, we built Geranos Getaways, named after the crane that crosses the Himalayas not because the journey is easy, but because what waits on the other side is worth every cold night. Our motto came to us effortlessly: Rediscover Yourself.

In our itineraries, we encourage you to unshackle yourself from time. Share a meal with strangers. Listen to a folk song even when you do not understand a word. Ride a tractor at dusk. Milk a cow. Let yourself simply be. Come back different. Come back clearer.

Because sometimes, the farther we travel from our routines, the closer we come to who we truly are.

Rediscover Yourself.

YOUR NEXT STORY BEGINS HERE

Travel isn't about collecting destinations.

It's about collecting experiences, memories, friendships, perspectives, and moments that stay with us forever. Whether you're seeking cultural immersion, luxury escapes, family holidays, wildlife adventures, spiritual journeys, or unforgettable cruise experiences, Geranos Getaways is available to create your perfect journey.
